

The Preventive Health Assessment (PHA) CD designed by the Fleet Health Promotion Consortium (FHPC) to provide information to patients, healthcare professionals, and other interested audiences, is not intended to replace or provide individual medical advice. For such advice, patients should always follow the recommendations by their physicians and other Health Care Providers. We have made great effort to provide accurate and current information, however, the developers of this CD acknowledge that information does become outdated, and at some point in time, information on this CD will also become outdated.

The sole intent of this CD is to offer an optional program resource to the Fleet for easier implementation of already existing Navy Program Policies. Information contains a minimum, but not all available program resources. The appearance of any information on this CD does not constitute any change to Official Navy Policy, but offers easy access to information already contained in other media resources. The appearance of any company name, products, or services contained within this document does not imply endorsement by the U.S. Navy, or by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, or by Organizational Members of the Fleet Health Promotion Consortium of Hampton Roads, Virginia. Public Health information and medical data appearing on this CD may not always be consistent with published U.S. Navy Policy and not intended to undermine any official Navy, Naval Medicine, or local designated authority.

To the best of our knowledge, no member of the Fleet Health Promotion Consortium has any material interest, financial interest, or other relationship, with any of the outside professional organizations and resources provided in the development of this PHA CD.
